

Team on the Run adds WebChat - get the best real-time multi-device synchronization technology on the market, a leap forward for business team efficiency in any industry.

March 30th, 2015

PARIS, FR - Team on the Run (TOTR), the most advanced mobile communication solution for business on the market, today announced the addition of a WebChat service. This market leading technology allows you to continue conversations instantly and effortlessly as you move from device to device. Start a conversation on your home tablet - pick it up on your smartphone as you commute - continue from your PC at work - and back to the smartphone in meetings - all automatically and seamlessly. Just another way that TOTR greatly improves the efficiency of business teams across industries.

A business owner testing the new feature with his field sales team explains:

"Team on the Run allows my team to switch back and forth between desktop and smartphone without interrupting the workday for client meetings and long commutes. This makes all of us happier, because our work gets done in a fraction of the time while simultaneously decreasing response times to clients, making them happier as well."

The Team on the Run service, available at www.teamontherun.com, is a unique communication solution built specifically for today's business environment. TOTR provides a SaaS solution for companies unwilling to compromise between the speed and ease-of-use of popular mass-market messaging applications, and business requirements such as end-to-end security, corporate data and access control, and advanced features, including: Central Administration Portal, Cloud Storage Access, Mobile Corporate Directory, Document Exchange, and now "follow me to my device" via WebChat.

TOTR WebChat allows users to swiftly switch from mobile to desktop at their convenience, without waiting, and keeping their conversation history. Team on the Run users can easily access their WebChat service from any web browser by logging in with their phone number and password - no need to download or install any new software.

"Business owners and managers in diverse business sectors immediately recognize the value of our flexible time-saving tool that efficiently and securely mobilizes business processes", commented Team on the Run CEO Pascal Beglin, following the successful presentation of the new WebChat service at Mobile World Congress 2015.
