

Faiveley Transport wins a large contract to supply door systems for Montreal's new metro

Bombardier Transport North America has awarded Faiveley Transport with a contract to supply the on-board doors for 468 cars for the metro in Montreal, Canada. The 2 panel sliding doors will be produced in Faiveley Transport Canada in compliance with the "Canadian Content" rules. Some of the auxiliary elements will be partially produced in Spain and France.

This contract win illustrates Faiveley Transport's close working relationship with Bombardier Transport North America and highlights the reliability of these service proven products.

The first Train will be delivered in July 2012 for the on rail dynamic test; series production will begin in December 2012. The new trains will enter into commercial service in September 2013.

Once again, Faiveley Transport confirms its commitment to developing its presence in the North American market.
