Assystem acquires Edison Technical Recruitment Limited

Assystem has acquired 100% of the shares of Edison Technical Recruitment Limited (“Edison”) a company based in Birmingham, UK. Edison is a leading specialist engineering recruitment agency with a particular focus on electronics, electrical systems and software engineering within the automotive sector.

Edison offers both contract and permanent recruitment services to blue chip OEMs and Tier One suppliers in the UK, in areas such as R&D, product development, electrical/electronics engineering, chassis and powertrain engineering.

Edison currently provides circa 300 consultants within these sectors and benefits from a database of more than 6000 highly qualified candidates.

This acquisition will strengthen the recruitment agency business and also the other automotive activities of Assystem Global Product Solutions (GPS) in the UK, notably through Assystem’s and Edison embedded relationships with strategic OEM and First Tier supplier clients.

John McAuley, founder of Edison will continue in his position as Managing Director of Edison, maintaining his client interfaces, and will join Assystem UK’s team, helping to strengthen the automotive business.
