

Infosys Receives CorpU's Learning Excellence and Innovation Award 2013

Bangalore – May 6, 2013 – CorpU, a leading talent development insight and education provider in the United States, announced today that the Connect Architecture program led by Infosys has been recognized as an “Exemplary” practice during the 14th annual CorpU Learning Excellence and Innovation Awards. Connect Architecture is a unique community-driven initiative to nurture and develop IT architects. A panel of independent judges from companies including Microsoft and Coca-Cola selected the winners.

News Highlights

- The community enables IT architects to stay current with the latest functional and technical competencies through four levels of maturity - Certified Professional, Impactful Practitioner, Trusted Advisor and Thought Leader
- The program also pioneered the ‘Aspiring Architect’ initiative, a first-of-its-kind in the IT industry, that aims to train talented engineers to be world-class solution architects
- Connect Architecture is a joint program of Infosys Education & Research, Infosys Labs and the company's Quality Department. It includes more than 3,000 architects from across the company. This program extends to architects at Infosys business partners and clients as well
