First plasterboard plant in Indonesia

Saint-Gobain has inaugurated its first plasterboard plant in Indonesia, near Jakarta. With an annual capacity of 30 million square meters, this new production site will enable the company to respond better to local demand and continue the Group's growth on the rapidly growing Indonesian plasterboard market. This investment will also strengthen the Gypsum Activity's presence in Southeast Asia where it already has four other plants in Malaysia, Thailand and Vietnam.

Saint-Gobain will soon have six plants in Indonesia for its Abrasives, Industrial Mortars and Performance Plastics businesses. The automotive glass business recently announced that it is investing in a first plant in partnership with Central Glass.

Given its strong growth potential, the resilience and size of the country's domestic demand, the vigor of its construction sector and strength of its automotive industry, Indonesia plays a key role in the Group's strategic development in Southeast Asia.
