Neuilly-sur-Seine, 22 February 2021

Peugeot 1810

Etablissements Peugeot Frères and FFP rename the structure carrying their stakes in Stellantis and Faurecia

Etablissements Peugeot Frères and FFP announced today the change of name of their joint subsidiary Maillot I to Peugeot 1810.

This subsidiary, to which Etablissements Peugeot Frères and FFP contributed all their Peugeot S.A. and Faurecia shares in September 2020, owns 7.2% of Stellantis, which was created from the merger between the PSA Group and Fiat Chrysler Automobiles in January 2021.

Maillot I will be renamed Peugeot 1810, thereby highlighting the long industrial history of the Peugeot family at the origin of the two groups in which the company remains a shareholder. This automotive investment and expertise hub thus highlights its historical legitimacy, its industrial heritage and its knowledge of the challenges facing the automotive sector today.

Owned 23.5% by Établissements Peugeot Frères and 76.5% by FFP, this entity is now the second largest shareholder of the world's fourth largest automotive group.

Stellantis' shareholders will be asked to approve the distribution of its Faurecia shares on 8 March 2021, which would give Peugeot 1810 a total 3.14% stake in the automotive equipment supplier.

Jean-Philippe Peugeot, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Etablissements Peugeot Frères, said: "This name visibly establishes the participation of our family group in the governance of Stellantis and Faurecia. At the same time, we bring coherence to the Peugeot family group by harmonising the names and brand architecture of the group as a whole."

Robert Peugeot, Chairman of FFP, added: "We are delighted to continue our involvement alongside Stellantis and Faurecia through Peugeot 1810. With its dedicated governance, we are giving ourselves all the means to support the two companies as we have done since their creation."
