

GRECEMAR ANNOUNCES CLEAN-TECH FOCUS FOLLOWING REBRAND

Compagnie Mercosur Grecepar S.A. (“Grecepar”) has completed a strategic rebrand into the clean-tech industry with new company name, CMG Cleantech S.A. (“CMG”), and has launched a new corporate website. The finalisation of the rebranding will be subject to shareholder approval at an Extraordinary General Meeting on 21 February 2022.

[London, 12 January 2022] – CMG Cleantech S.A. (CMG), formerly Grecepar, has signalled today that it is focusing its attention and resources on the renewable energy market. The company’s new name and corporate branding is intended to highlight this refined focus, along with its expansion into new geographies and growing capabilities in the creation and development of hydrogen, battery and solar systems.

CMG’s most recent acquisition, British clean-tech firm Tech Infinite, creates and develops hydrogen, battery and solar systems for the residential solar market, for EV solar fast-charge points, and for street-lighting systems. The business has developed a standalone carbon neutral solution for mobile locations and commercial energy use, based upon a multi-fuel hydrogen approach.

Visit www.cmgcleantech.com for more information

About CMG Cleantech S.A.

Listed on the Euronext Paris Exchanges, CMG Cleantech S.A. (CMG) is driven by a strong, secure ESG strategy – to develop the clean hydrogen and solar technology at its disposal and help countries, organisations and individuals alleviate their environmental impacts and meet ambitious 2050 carbon neutrality goals. With the acquisition of Tech Infinite, CMG will develop its suite of renewable, carbon-neutral technologies for both residential and commercial solar markets.

www.cmgcleantech.com

Contacts for IR and media enquiries:

CMG Cleantech S.A.. Charlotte Williams, info@cmgcleantech.com, +44 (0)770 396 3953