RISK FACTORS

Prospective purchasers of the Warrants are advised to read the complete Base Prospectus including the chapter on "Risk Factors" and to seek their own advice (including tax consultants and accountholding bank) before reaching an investment decision.

Potential investors intending to purchase the Warrants should only purchase the Warrants if they are able to evaluate the merits and risks of such a purchase and if they are able to sustain the loss of the purchase price and of the transaction costs in connection with the purchase of the Warrants.

RISKS ASSOCIATED WITH THE INLINE WARRANTS

General

Subject to the occurrence of Knock-Out Event, Inline Warrants on indices (the "Inline Warrants", the "Underlying Asset") grant to the holder (the "Warrantholder") the right (the "Option Right") to receive the payment of a fixed amount (the "Cash Settlement Amount").

The Option Right will expire upon the occurrence of a Knock-Out Event (see below "Knock-Out Event").

The Inline Warrants do not entitle the Warrantholders to receive a coupon payment or dividend yield and therefore do not constitute a regular source of income. Possible losses in connection with an investment in the Inline Warrants can therefore not be compensated by other income from the Inline Warrants.

Knock-Out Event

If during the Monitoring Period the price of the Underlying Asset is equal to or below the Lower Barrier or equal to or above the Upper Barrier (the "Knock-Out Event") the Option Right granted by the Inline Warrants shall expire and no Cash Settlement Amount shall be payable to the Warrantholder. The occurrence of a Knock-out Event leads to the total loss of the capital invested by the Warrantholder for the purchase of the Inline Warrants.

As opposed to warrants where a warrant which has lost in value may recover during its lifetime until the Expiration Date, investors in Inline Warrants with a knock-out feature should be aware of the fact that such securities may become worthless at any time after the issue date without the possibility to recover in value during the time until the Expiration Date.

Exercise of the Inline Warrants only on the Expiration Date (European Style)

One of the essential characteristics of the Inline Warrants is that the Inline Warrants are not exercisable during their lifetime. An automatic payment can only be expected by the Warrantholder (i) latest on the fifth Payment Business Day following the Expiration Date, or, (ii) in case of an Early Termination of the Inline Warrants by the Issuer, on the Early Termination Date.

Prior to the fifth Payment Business Day following the Expiration Date (or prior to the Early Termination Date in case of an Early Termination of the Inline Warrants by the Issuer) a realisation of the economic value of the Inline Warrants (or part of it) is only possible by selling the Inline Warrants. A sale of the Inline Warrants, however, requires that there are market participants willing to purchase the Inline Warrants at the respective price. If there are no market participants willing to do so the value of the Inline Warrants may possibly not be realised. The Issuer has no obligation to provide for a trading in the Inline Warrants or to repurchase the Inline Warrants itself.

Special Characteristics of Inline Warrants relating to Indices consisting of shares

If the index to which a specific Inline Warrant relates is no longer calculated and published by the relevant index sponsor of such index but by another person, company or institution acceptable to the Issuer as the successor sponsor, any reference made to the index sponsor shall, if the context so admits, then refer to the successor sponsor.

If at any time the index to which a specific Inline Warrant relates is cancelled or replaced, the Issuer will determine another index as basis for the determination of the occurrence of a Knock-Out Event (the "Successor Index").

In the case that the occurrence of an Adjustment Event as set forth in the Terms and Conditions of the Inline Warrants with respect to a share contained in the Index (the "Index Share") has a material effect on the price of the Index, the Issuer is entitled to make adjustments to the Terms and Conditions of the Inline Warrants. (An Adjustment Event means amongst others the substitution of the index by a successor index or any of the following actions taken by the company issuing the Index Share: capital increases, spin-offs, adjustments with respect to option or futures contracts relating to the Index Share, etc.) Such adjustments may inter alia affect the Lower Barrier as well as the Upper Barrier.

In the case of the occurrence of an Extraordinary Event as set forth in the Terms and Conditions of the Inline Warrants, the Issuer may (a) continue the calculation of the Index on the basis of the former concept of the Index and its last determined level or (b) terminate the Inline Warrants prematurely. (An Extraordinary Event means that (i) the determination of a Successor Index in accordance with the above is not possible or is unreasonable for the Issuer or (ii) the index sponsor materially modifies the calculation method of the Index with effect on or after the issue date, or materially modifies the Index in any other way (except for modifications which are contemplated in the calculation method of the Index relating to a change with respect to securities comprising the Index or with respect to any other routine measures).) If the Issuer decides to terminate the Inline Warrants prematurely due to the occurrence of an Extraordinary Event each Inline Warrant will be redeemed at an amount which will be determined by the Issuer in its reasonable discretion. The rights arising from the Inline Warrants will terminate with the payment of such amount.

General Risks associated with the Purchase of Inline Warrants

Inline Warrants involve a high degree of risk and investors must be prepared to sustain a total loss of the purchase price of their Inline Warrants. It cannot be expected that the price of the Underlying Asset will neither trigger the Lower Barrier nor the Upper Barrier and, therefore, the investor can not rely upon an investment in the Inline Warrants being profitable. The occurrence of not anticipated fluctuations in the price of the Underlying Asset may disproportionately affect the value of the Inline Warrants and may lead to the Inline Warrants expiring worthless.

Important factors in determining the price of Inline Warrants are in particular:

- the actual price of the relevant Underlying Asset and the expectations of market participants regarding its price,
- the anticipated frequency and intensity of fluctuations in the price of the relevant Underlying Asset (volatility), and
- the lifetime of the Inline Warrants.

Risks associated with the Valuation of the Underlying Asset

The market price of the Inline Warrants at any time is expected to be affected primarily by changes in the level of the Underlying Asset to which the Inline Warrants relate. It is impossible to predict how the level of the relevant Underlying Asset will vary over time. Factors which may have an effect on the value of the Underlying Asset include the rate of return of the Underlying Asset, e.g. dividend payments, and the financial position and prospects of the issuer of the Underlying Asset or any component thereof. In addition, the level of the Underlying Asset may depend on a number of interrelated factors, including economic, financial and political events and their effect on the capital markets generally and on the relevant exchanges. Potential investors should also note that whilst the market value of the Inline Warrants is linked to the relevant Underlying Asset and will be influenced (positively or negatively) by it, any change may not be comparable and may be disproportionate. It is possible that while the Underlying Asset is increasing in value, the value of the Inline Warrants may fall.

Risks associated with the Volatility of the Underlying Asset

The term "Volatility" refers to the frequency and magnitude of changes of the market price with respect to an Underlying Asset. Volatility is affected by a number of factors such as macro economic factors, speculative trading and supply and demand in the options, futures and other derivatives markets. The anticipated volatility is commonly known as "Implied Volatility", while the experienced volatility is defined as "Historic Volatility".

In the case of Inline Warrants the Implied Volatility is of great importance in the market making process relating to such Inline Warrants. The Implied Volatility reflects the estimated fluctuations of the Underlying Assets. The Issuer will base the pricing on its estimates for future fluctuations of the value of the Underlying Asset. Estimates will be based inter alia on the market's valuations of listed futures and options related to the Underlying Assets. The Implied Volatility may reduce the value of the Inline Warrants even if the price of the Underlying Asset does not change.

A generally positive development in the price of the Underlying Asset does not necessarily result in an increase in the price of the Inline Warrants. The price of the Inline Warrants may even fall if the performance of the Underlying Asset is overcompensated by a decreasing volatility with a negative effect on the value of the Inline Warrants. Therefore, the Volatility of an Underlying Asset could affect the value of the Inline Warrants. A higher Historic Volatility could lead to increased as well as decreased value of the Inline Warrants.

Risk associated with Leverage

A typical feature of Inline Warrants is their leverage effect on the earnings prospects of the invested capital: The price of Inline Warrants always reacts over proportionately to changes in the price of the Underlying Asset and, thus, offers chances of higher profit during their lifetime - but bear at the same time high risks of incurring a loss. This is because the leverage has an effect in both directions - i.e. not only upwards in favourable periods, but also downwards in unfavourable periods. The greater the leverage, the riskier the purchase of Inline Warrants. The leverage effect is particularly strong in the case of Inline Warrants with very short lifetimes.

Inline Warrants are unsecured Obligations

The Inline Warrants are unsecured and unsubordinated obligations of the Issuer and will rank pari passu with all present and future unsecured and unsubordinated obligations of the Issuer, without any preference among themselves and without any preference one above the other by reason of priority of date of issue, currency or any payment or otherwise, except for obligations given priority by law. Any person who purchases any of the Inline Warrants is relying upon the creditworthiness of the Issuer and has no rights under the Inline Warrants against any other person. Together with the general investment risk an investment in the Inline Warrants is also concerned with possible default risk of the Issuer. The Issuer may issue several issues of warrants relating to various reference underlying assets which may be specified in the applicable Final Terms. However, no assurance can be given that the Issuer will issue any warrants other than the warrants to which a particular set of Final Terms relates. At any given time, the number of warrants outstanding may be substantial. Inline Warrants provide opportunities for investment and pose risks to investors as a result of fluctuations in the value of the underlying asset. In general, certain risks associated with the Inline Warrants are similar to those generally applicable to other options or warrants of private corporate issuers.

Issuer Risk

In addition to the risk connected with the investment in the Underlying Asset of a Inline Warrant, the investor bears the risk that the financial situation of the Issuer of the Inline Warrant declines – or that insolvency or bankruptcy proceedings are instituted against the Issuer – and that as a result the Issuer cannot fulfil its payment obligations under the Inline Warrants.

Possible Illiquidity of the Inline Warrants in the Secondary Market

It is not possible to predict the price at which Inline Warrants will trade in the secondary market or whether such market will be liquid or illiquid. The Issuer may, but is not obliged to, list Inline Warrants on a stock exchange.

The Issuer may, but is not obliged to, at any time purchase Inline Warrants at any price in the open market or by tender or private treaty. Any Inline Warrants so purchased may be held or resold or surrendered for cancellation. The Issuer may, but is not obliged to, be a market-maker for an issue of Inline Warrants. Even if the Issuer is a market-maker for an issue of Inline Warrants, the secondary market for such Inline Warrants may be limited.

Potential Conflicts of Interest

The Issuer and its affiliates may also engage in trading activities (including hedging activities) related to the Underlying Asset of the Inline Warrants and other instruments or derivative products based on or related to the Underlying Asset for their proprietary accounts or for other accounts under their management. The Issuer and its affiliates may also issue other derivative instruments in respect of the Underlying Asset. Such activities could present certain conflicts of interest, could influence the prices of the Underlying Assets or other securities and could adversely affect the value of such Inline Warrants.

Risks in connection with Borrowing

If the investor obtains a loan in connection with financing the purchase of the Inline Warrants the investor does not only bear the risk of sustaining the loss in connection with the Inline Warrants if the price of the Underlying Assets develops unfavourably, but also has to pay back the loan and pay the interest connected with it. This means a substantial increase in risk. An investor can never rely on being able to pay back the loan and the interest connected with it through gains derived from the purchase of the Inline Warrants. Prospective purchasers of Inline Warrants should therefore carefully consider their particular financial circumstances and whether they will be able to pay back the loan and pay the interest connected with it even if the investor has to sustain losses instead of the expected gains.

Transactions Excluding or Limiting Risk

The investor cannot expect that at all times during the lifetime of the Inline Warrants transactions can be concluded which exclude or limit the risks incurred from a purchase of Inline Warrants; this depends on the market conditions and the specific features of such Inline Warrants as specified in the Final Terms of such Inline Warrants. Such transactions can under certain circumstances be concluded only at an unfavourable market price and lead to a corresponding loss.

Influence of ancillary Costs on Potential Profit

Investors should consider that the return on the investment in the Inline Warrants is reduced by the costs in connection with the purchase and sale of the Inline Warrants.

Minimum or fixed commissions per transaction (purchase and sale) combined with a low order value (price of the Inline Warrant times quantity) can lead to costs which, in extreme cases, may exceed the value of the Inline Warrants purchased. The costs may be considerable compared with the total Cash Settlement Amount received by the Warrantholder exercising his Inline Warrants.

The Influence of Hedging Transactions of the Issuer on the Inline Warrants

The Issuer and/or its affiliates may in the course of their normal business activity engage in trading in the Underlying Asset. In addition, the Issuer may conclude transactions in order to hedge itself partially or completely against the risks associated with the issue of the Inline Warrants. These activities of the Issuer and/or its affiliates may have an influence on the market price of the Inline Warrants. A possibly negative impact of the conclusion or dissolution of these hedging transactions on the value of the Inline Warrants cannot be excluded. In particular, the dissolution of the hedge position and a possible unwinding of the Issuer's and/or its affiliates' position in the Underlying Asset during the closing auction on the relevant Expiration Date may influence the price of the Underlying Assets in the closing auction. This risk is higher for Underlying Assets with low liquidity levels, especially during the closing auction.

Legal Investment Considerations may restrict certain Investments

The investment activities of certain investors are subject to legal investment laws and regulations, or review or regulation by certain authorities. Each potential investor should consult its legal advisors to determine whether and to what extent (a) Inline Warrants are legal investments for it, (b) Inline Warrants can be used as collateral for various types of borrowing and (c) other restrictions apply to its purchase or pledge of any Inline Warrants. Financial institutions should consult their legal advisors or the appropriate regulators to determine the appropriate treatment of Inline Warrants under any applicable risk-based capital or similar rules.

Risk Factors relating to the underlying

The value of the respective underlying depends on a number of interrelated factors, including economic, financial and political events beyond the Issuer's control. The historical experience of the respective underlying should not be taken as an indication of future performance of such underlying(s) during the term of any Inline Warrant. Additionally, there may be regulatory and other ramifications associated with the ownership by certain investors of the Inline Warrants.

Special Risks of Inline Warrants relating to Indices

Dependency on the value of the index components

The value of an index is calculated on the basis of the value of its components. Changes in the composition of an index as well as factors that (may) influence the value of the components also influence the value of the relevant index and can thus influence the yield from an investment in the Inline Warrants. Fluctuations in the value of one component of an index may be compensated or aggravated by fluctuations in the value of another component. Historical performance of the components does not represent any guarantee of future performance. An index used as an underlying may not, in certain circumstances, be maintained for the entire term of the Inline Warrants.

An index may reflect the performance of assets of some countries or some industries only. Therefore, the value of the relevant index depends on the development of the index components of individual countries or industries. Even if more than just a few countries or industries are represented, it is still possible that the industries contained in the relevant index are weighted unevenly. This means that in case of an unfavourable development in one industry contained in the relevant index, the index may be affected disproportionately by this adverse development.

Investors should note that the selection of an index is not based on the expectations or estimates of the Issuer in respect of the future performance of the selected index. Investors should thus make their own estimates in respect of the future performance of the components of an index and the index itself on the basis of their own knowledge and sources of information.

No influence of the Issuer

As a general rule, the Issuer has no influence on the composition and performance of an underlying index or the performance of its components (exception: The Issuer is identical with the index sponsor). A change in composition may have an adverse effect on the value of the Inline Warrants.

No liability of the index sponsor

Where the Issuer is not the index sponsor of the relevant index, Inline Warrants based on an index as underlying are generally not sponsored or otherwise supported by any index sponsor, and the relevant index is composed and calculated by the respective index sponsor without any account being taken of the Issuer's or the interests of the holder's of the Inline Warrants. In such case, the index sponsors does not assume any obligation or liability in respect of the issue, sale or trading of the Inline Warrants.

No recognised financial index, no independent third party

The Inline Warrants may be linked to an index which is not recognised as a financial index but an index that have been created for the issuance of the relevant Inline Warrant. The index sponsor of such index might not be independent from the Issuer and may thus favour the interests of the Issuer over the interests of the holder of the Inline Warrants.

Composition fees

Certain fees, costs, commissions or other charges for composition and calculation may be deducted by the relevant index sponsor when calculating the value of an index on the basis of the value of its individual components. As a result, the performance of the individual index components is not acknowledged in full when calculating the performance of the respective index, but is reduced by the amount of such fees, costs, commissions and other charges.

Publication of the index composition

Even if the composition of the relevant indices is to be published on a website or in other media specified in the Final Terms, the composition shown might not always be the current composition of the respective relevant index because the posting of the updated composition of the respective index on the website might be delayed considerably, sometimes even by several months.
