

Atos SE announces appeal of the amended final judgment in the TriZetto litigation

Paris, France – May 20, 2026 – In connection with the litigation between Syntel and TriZetto (a subsidiary of Cognizant), Atos filed a notice of appeal on May 19, 2026, before the United States Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit against the Amended Final Judgment entered on April 29, 2026, whereby the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York ordered Atos and its subsidiary Syntel to pay US$297.9 million¹ (approximately €255.7 million²) to TriZetto, in accordance with its pre-judgment decision dated March 27, 2026³.

To obtain a stay of enforcement of the Amended Final Judgment, Atos has implemented a supersedeas bond in an amount equal to the full judgment, increased by post-judgment interest⁴, in accordance with applicable procedural requirements.

It is specified that the said bond is secured by a cash deposit of US$290 million (approximately €249 million⁵), which is an additional US$203 million (approximately €174 million) on top of the amount already on deposit in connection with this litigation.

Atos Group confirms that this decision does not have a material adverse impact on its assets, business, liquidity or financial condition.

¹ The Amended Final Judgment entered on 29 April 2026 confirmed the amounts set in the pre-judgment decision (see footnote 3) and calculated the amount of pre-judgment interest on compensatory damages, setting it at US$60,927,590 through 24 April 2026, plus US$21,604 per day until a final decision is rendered. It is specified that, as a matter of procedure, and at TriZetto's request, the Amended Final Judgment further held that the reduction of punitive damages could be ordered as a matter of law, without requiring TriZetto's formal acceptance of the reduction ("remittitur") or a new trial on punitive damages.
