ODIOT SA announces the renewal of its “Entreprise du Patrimoine Vivant” (Living Heritage Company) label

Paris, July 23, 2026 – 7:00 p.m

ODIOT S.A. (Euronext Access, FR0014010DV3 – MLODT) announces that the “Entreprise du Patrimoine Vivant” (EPV – Living Heritage Company) label held by Maison ODIOT has been renewed for a further five years.

The renewal was notified by the Prefect of the Île-de-France region in a letter dated 20 July 2026, following the assessment carried out by the certification body SGS-ICS.

An official State label recognising exceptional French craftsmanship

Created by the French State in 2005, the “Entreprise du Patrimoine Vivant” label distinguishes French companies that hold rare artisanal or industrial expertise, founded on the mastery of traditional or highly technical skills. Awarded for a five-year term, the label brings together a network of some 1,400 companies recognised for the excellence of their craft.

ODIOT, first awarded the label by ministerial decree on 12 February 2019, thus confirms its place within this circle of brands entrusted with France's living heritage.

Recognition of excellence handed down since 1690

This renewal endorses the brand's unwavering commitment to quality and attests to the vitality of a body of craftsmanship passed down, uninterrupted, for over three centuries. Silversmith to emperors and kings, ODIOT remains faithful to methods and techniques inherited from the 18th century: each piece is crafted entirely by hand by highly specialised artisans – from the foundry to the polisher – in keeping with the skills on which the brands's renown has been built for more than three hundred years.

Beyond technical virtuosity, every ODIOT creation is conceived as an heirloom, made to stand the test of time and to be passed down from one generation to the next.
