VINCI finalises the acquisition of Fletcher Construction in New Zealand

- An annual revenue of about €630 million with a workforce of 2,300 employees
- Strengthening VINCI Construction's position in New Zealand
- Strong growth in the New Zealand's infrastructure market

VINCI Construction has today finalised the acquisition, announced on 20 January 2026, of Fletcher Construction.

Created in 1909, Fletcher Construction, a subsidiary of the New Zealand-based Fletcher Building group, employs more than 2,300 people in New Zealand where it generates an annual revenue of around €630 million (NZ$1.3 billion). Its main areas of expertise cover hydraulic, maritime, port, airport, railway and road works. In addition, it has a growing volume of activity in the field of renewable energies.

Alongside HEB Construction based in Auckland, acquired in 2015, as well as SOL in Christchurch and Wharehine in the North Island - acquired in 2025 - this acquisition strengthens VINCI Construction's proximity network of local companies in New Zealand and positions it as a major player in the country's highly dynamic infrastructure market.

With all its activities combined, VINCI generated revenue of more than €830 million in New Zealand in 2025.
